Arthur Szyk (b. 1894, Lodz, Poland – d. 1951, New Canaan, CT, USA) worked in Poland, France, England, Canada, and the United States, and was renowned for his prolific illustrations in books, newspapers, and magazines, commenting on contemporary issues, including World War II, the Holocaust, and the creation of the State of Israel. Szyk has often been compared to Norman Rockwell for his artwork and illustrations.

Irvin Ungar, a former pulpit rabbi and antiquarian bookseller, has specialized in Arthur Szyk research. Ungar is the author of Arthur Szyk: Soldier in Art (winner of the 2017 National Jewish Book Award), co-producer of the documentary film, “Soldier in Art: Arthur Szyk,” and the creator and publisher of the luxury limited edition of The Szyk Haggadah. He has also served as the curator of The Arthur Szyk Society in Burlingame, California.
